

Maren Egedorf is the Project Manager at EIRM.

Maren Egedorf brings ten years' experience in international programme management and communications to her work for EIRM and PRIMO. Prior to joining EIRM, Maren worked with the UN and on a USAID financed project: 'Mesoamerican Food Security Early Warning System' in Nicaragua and Guatemala. Maren has extensive experience in food security, livelihood and vulnerability analyses, and 'humanitarian' risk management, with emphasis on risk assessment, scenario building, early warning systems and risk communication.

In her work, Maren Egedorf has presented risk assessment and vulnerability seminars and speeches in Latin America and Europe. She headed missions to Angola and Bolivia to strengthen monitoring systems, risk analysis, and communication competencies in public sector institutions.

Maren Egedorf has extensive experience in cross-cultural team building and leadership, organisational capabilities development, successful negotiation techniques, and risk education enhancement.

Maren holds a Master's Degree in International Economics and Modern Languages (English and Spanish) from the University of Odense, Denmark. She is fluent in Danish, English, and Spanish and has a good working knowledge of Portuguese and French.
